

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE:

A wireless communication system is provided which supplies an only necessary font to a wireless client and avoids incorrect display on the wireless client. A wireless communication gateway server receives language information from the wireless client, and supplies a required font to the wireless client. The font is determined based on the language information by using a user control server including user information database and a font server including a plurality of fonts.

006T0T" 208T6960